The "Contempt" Case-Important Deci-

Brigadier General Graham appeared before Judge Merrick, of the Circuit Court, at noon yesterday, in obedience to the ruling that he should appear and answer the charge of contempt of court, in detaining the minor, Jeremiah Lyons, in the camp of the twenty-third Pennsylvania regiment, whose discharge had been ordered by the court after a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus. District At orney Carringten and Lieut. Ool. Gross, of the Long Island regiment, appeared in behalf of the defendant.

ringon and Lieut. Col. Gross, of the Long Island regiment, appeared in behalf of the defendant.

The District Attorney first read an affidavit of Gen. Graham, seiting forth, substantially, that no defiance or disrespect had been intended the court in the course he had taken, but that he had simply obeyed the order of his military superiors, as stated in "General Order No. 73," of September 7, 1861, which prohibits the discharge of minors.

The court suggested that this "Order" temade a part of the answer, which was done.

Lieut. Col. Cross then addressed the court in defence of Gen. Graham, arguing to show that the notice to-appear before this court on the present occasion, and answer, was the first which had been sen to him, and was promptly obeyed; that courts of the United States have no jurisdiction in cases of this kind—it being purely a military matter, to be determined by military authority; that no jurisdiction had ever been conferred upon any court in a matter of this kind; and such being the case, it cannot issue a writ to assist its jurisdiction; that there was no involuntary service rendered by the minor, Jeremish Lyons; that an inferior officer must obey his superior; that both general and special orders must be obeyed; that he could not have done other than he did without being in danger of being cashiered; and that consequently Gen. Graham was not the person to have been brought before this court, but rather Adjutant General Thomas, who issued the "General Order" under which he had acted.

District Attorney Carrington followed, recluded by asking the discharge of General Graham.

Judge Merrick, in giving his decision in the case, spoke at considerable length, and quoted numerous authorities, to show that, at all times, and particularly in times of war, the civil power should be preserved and made superfor to the military. In the course of his remarks, he referred to a case which happened in Polladelphia on Saturday last, where a colonel was marching his regiment along the street, and was obliged to stop his regiment in the street, and go into the court-house to answer to a charge of detaining a minor in the ranks against the will of his parents. In that case, the court vindicated its authority, and the minor was discharged from the regiment. He then remarked that, whilst it was due to the dignity of the court that this process should be enforced, it was also proper that no unnecessary severity should be exercised to accomplish that result. He then stated the decision of the court to be, that, unless Jeremiah Lyon is produced in court to day, (Thursday.) at noon, an attachment-for contempt of court would be issued against Gen. Graham.

Target Firing.

Target Firing.

Target Firing.

The battalion of marines stationed at the barracks, went out, yesterday, to the vicinity of the poor-house, where some time was spent in target firing. The well-riddled targets which were brought in, evinced that as crack marksmen, the corps are in no ways deficient. The targets were of canvass, and about eight feet in length and four in breadth, with a figure of a man in the centre of each. They were placed at a distance of two hundred yards, and out of the three hundred rounds fired, one hundred and twenty-four struck the figure, and nearly all the others struck the target. Considering the long distance, and that many of the men are new recruits, we should say that the marines, with a little more practice, will be entitled to the appellation of sharpshooters.

Fatal Accident.

Tarman Roff, a native of New Jersey, and a member of company B, second regiment of Fire Zouaves, was accidentally shot at Camp McClellan, in Maryland, on Monday last, and died the following morning. He was in his tent, and a comrade in an adjoining tent threw down a musket, which, being at full cook, was discharged. It was loaded with a ball and three buckshot, and one of the latter entered the right groin of Roff and ruptured the intestines, causing his death. His body has been embalmed, and will be sent to his home in New Jersey.

Stealing a Trunk.

Stealing a Trunk.

On Tuesday morning, an individual, who called himself Thomas Gorman, on being released from a ceil in the guardhouse, where he had been confired during the previous night, related to the guards a long and interesting story to the effect that, while jfing on the "soit planks" in his cell, he was visited by angels, who told him "to be up and doing his duy, which was, to save the country from ruin and desolation." After the recital of his experience, he was released, the guards at the time advising him to be sure and hold consultation with the "angels," rather than the "sprits." At night, however, he again made his appearance near the guardhouse; this time much more under the influence of the "bad spirits." than the "au gels," and with a large army trunk, which he could give no satisfactory account of. The officers came across him at one of the cookshops, and gathered him and his traps together, which were all taken to the guardhouse, but when yesterday morning arrived he had no account to give of the trunk, which we identified by Mr. H. O. Hood, who stated it to have been taken from the pavement in front of his store. Justice Walter committed him to jail, (to answer at court,) where he will have a chance to often commune with his favorite "angels."

Three Rebel Regiments Routed. COL. BARTOW, OF GEORGIA, KILLED.

Inlet by the Stars and Stripes that 2,500 Confederates, consisting of a Georgia, South Carolina, and a Virginia regiment, had crossed over from the min land in six small steamers and a schroner, and with flat boats, and attacked the Indiana regiment, who were obliged to retreat. The Susquehanna and Monticello steamed up outside, while Col. Hawkins marched up with six companies and reached Hatteras Light by nightful, a distance of thirteen miles.

During the night Col. Hawkins was joined by the twe-tieth Indiana regiment, who had passed in the darkness a large body of the Confederates who had landed for the purpose of outting them off. Col. Brown reported a loss of fifty men as prisoners, comprising his sick, wounded, and twenty pickets, who could not be call d in. He succeeded in saving his tents, provisions, etc.

On Saturday morning, the Mouticello steemed around the cape, and a few miles up the coast met the Confederates marching down the narrow nock of land to attack our troops. The rebel steamers were also landing men to cooperate with them. They were in easy range, and the Monticello opened upon them with shells of five seconds fuses, 218 of which were fired from three guns in three hours and thirty minutes, doing great execution.

The Confederates trued at first to sheller themselves behind a sand hill, and then in a narrow copse, but soon broke in every direction, and took refuge upon their vessels, a shell passing through the wheel-house of the Fanny, which was aiready employed against us.

It is supposed that their loss must have reached between 200 and 300 killed and wounded.

The following is the official report of Lieu tenant Braine:

United States Stramer Monticello, Off Cape Hatteras, N. C., Oct. 5, 1861.
Sha: I have the honor to inform you that, in obedience to your order of this morning, I stood through the inner channel of Hatteras Shoals at 12.30 P. M., and stood close along shore to the northward, keeping a brightlook-out from aloft. A. 1.30 P. M., we discovered several sailing vessels over the woodland, "Kinecut," and, at the same time, a regiment marching to the northward, carrying a rebel fing in their midst, with many stragglers in the rear; also two tigs inside flying the same flug. As they came out of the woods, Kinecut, we ran close in shore, and opened a deliberate fre upon them at a distance of three quarters of a mile. At our first shell, which fell apparently in their midst, they rolled up their fing and scattered, moving rapidly up the beach to the northward. We followed them, firing rapidly from three guas, driving them up to a clump of woods, in which they took refuge, and abreast of which their steamers lay.

We now shelled the woods, and could see them embarking in small boats for their vessels, evidently in great confusion, and suffering greatly from our fre.

Their steamers now opened upon us, fring, however, but three shots, which fell short. Two boats, filled with men, were struck by our shells and deskroyed. Three more steamers came down the Sound, and took position opposite the woods we were shelling; also, two sloops. We continued firing deliberately upon them from one and a half P. M. until three and a half P. M., when two men were discovered on the seabeach, making signals to us. Supposing them to be two of the ludiana regiment, we sent an armed boat and crew to bring them off, covering them at the same time with our fire. Upon the boat nearing the beach, they took to the water. One of them was successful in reaching the boat private Warren O. Haver, company H, twentieth regiment Indiana troops, was, unfortunately, drowned in the surf.

Private Haver

ms water, and five-seconds shell told with effect.

Siz steamers were now off the Point, one of which I recognized as the Fanny.

At five twenty-five P. M. we ceased firing, leaving the enemy scattered along the beach for upward of four miles.

I fired repeatedly at the enemy's steamers with our rifled cannon, a "Parrott," thirty pounds, and struck the Fanny, I think, once. I found the range of this piece much short of what I had anticipated; many of the shot turning end over end, and not exceeding much the range of the smooth-bore thirty-two pounds. I enclose herewith the memorandum of the ammunition expended to-day.

The Fiag-Haising at the Government Printing Office.

Your account of the flag-raising at the Government Printing Office in this morning's issue, in some respects I am certainly pleased with, but in others, I am not assured that it proves the loyalty of these who have been instrumental in adorning that building with two loyal diases this morning. Some few weeks since, an endeavor was made to replenish the then dilap idiated emblems of our favored country flying over that building, but it was received with a coldness which almost froze the fragments remaining on the flag-staff. Since that time, an investigation has been had into the loyalty of persons attached to that branch of the public service, before the investigating committee now assembled at the Capitol, which went fur to show that a considerable portion were strongly tainted, and that others were avowedly inimical to the Government of the United States, and behold, the result is, that for flags now wave, where no sign of patriotism existed. The gentleman who addressed the audience on the occasion is a warm, good-natured politician of the Baltimore Sanstripe, is a Virginian by birth, and was certainly out of place in his position. He assuredly did not understand his position in respect to the author of the "Star-Spingled Banner," and was merely courting the favor of those who are now upholding the principles of the Baltimore San-as sheet that has done more mischief in Maryland than all others against the Union. I am, therefore, of the opinion that a greater proportion of fear than patriotism existed in raising the above flag.
